ama Monday in an attempt to shut off raids into Costa Rica against the followers of ousted Panamanian President Arnulfo Arias.

National Guardsmen overthrew Arias in a bloodless coup in October. Many of his supporters fled to Costa Rica and set up a guerrilla movement along the Costa Rica-Panama frontier.

Monday, raiders from Panama used forged documents to cross into Costa Rica and gunned down Enrique Moreno, reportedly a leader in the Arias guerrilla movement.

Security Minister Diego Trejos, in announcing the border closing, blamed "negligence" by border guards for letting the assassins through.
